Free Two-Hour Microsoft Sponsored Custom Development Workshop Hosted by Innovative Architects.

January 8th, 2009 – Duluth, GA – Companies interested in Microsoft custom development around existing applications have the opportunity to participate in a free two-hour workshop through January 31, 2009 courtesy of Innovative Architects (IA).

“We’re looking forward to hosting workshops throughout the month of January. A large percentage of our business is around custom development, and we have the expertise to assist companies in taking their current applications to the next level,” said Dan Michaels, Sales Principal at Innovative Architects.

The free workshop will evaluate and review companies existing or proposed custom applications focusing on .Net patterns and practices, application availability, durability, scalability, and application maintenance and troubleshooting. Requirements for the two-hour workshop include applications built on the Microsoft Server Stack using .Net technology. All requests are subject to approval by Innovative Architects to ensure the workshop is beneficial and applicable for all parties. Sign-up for the event is available online at <http://www.innovativearchitects.com/DevelopmentWorkshop.aspx>.
